TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 24, 1868. THE TENNESSEE NATIONAL BANK The Memphis Ledger, referring to "what is called the school fund," says "there is a whisper on the streets that $52,000 or $57,000 of the assets of the Tennessee National Bank, which should go so far to replace that fund, is at present in the hands of a certain party" in attention to the matter of this so-called went to Memphis to investigate the trans-It was stated then that if suits had been instituted a large portion of the missing fund could have been secured. There were rumors at the time of the course in which the "school fund" had gone, that a thorough investigation would develop an extraordinary amount of fraud and rascality. This was so freely talked of that it could not have failed to reach the the ears of the members of the Legislature. As the committee on the part of the Legislature did not give the result of their investigation to the public, the inference is legitimate that they found a been ever since confined. A writ of very bad and damaging condition of afhabeas corpus was applied for to Judge fairs. It is true, it was a Radical transaction, but why should that operate to screen the guilty. BONDS AND GREENBACKS. The New York World is adding to the grievous mischief it did the Western and Southern Democracy prior to and pending the Presidential election, by attacking the Democratic supporters of the "so-called" Greenback theory. It launches its bolts at Mr. Pendleton and his friends, attempts to involve the New York Convention of July in a maze of contradictions and inconsistencies, and to cast the odium of defeat upon Western

" HEADS OR TAILS."

From present in lications it appears that the next great question which the American people will have to solve, is, who once delighted to praise him, that whether Grant or Colfax will be the ruling spirit in the next administration. While Grant is congratulating a straightout Democrat on his election to Congress. CoMax is more closely allying himself with the extremists, marrying Ben Wade's daughter, and laying pipe for the control of affairs. As the case now stands the public are left in doubt which will be the | was to be the first place in the "new na head or teil of the next administration.
